BENJAMIN ROSEMBERG

France

Benjamin Rosemberg is a French photographer based between Europe and North America. A graduate of the Gobelins School in 2005, he has developed a sensitive photographic practice centred on light, atmosphere and moments of quiet beauty.

This series, captured above the mountains of British Columbia, emerged from a suspended moment: the sight of a vast landscape veiled in mist and illuminated by the low, grazing light of the sun. Free from staging or intervention, each image captures the fragile power of a fleeting instant, poised between revelation and contemplation.

Benjamin Rosemberg's work invites the viewer to slow down, to experience light as an emotion, and to encounter the landscape as a living presence.
